

LUX EXPOSÉ

Sleek and sumptuous in its finish, wood paneling is a stunning design statement that adds a touch of warmth and refinement to any room. Warm, polished wood panels add an organic feel to the starkest of interiors. Some of New York City's towers refine their amenity spaces with wood paneling so that residents would instantly feel cozy and comfortable. With all of the attributes of a cozy cabin, these exceptional buildings also include expansive space for indoor activities whether it be a glass of wine by the fire or a card game.

200 East 83rd, the new Upper East Side residential tower by Robert A.M. Stern Architects with interiors by Rottet Studio, features multiple amenities spaces with wood paneling. The state-of-the-art fitness center and yoga studio feel fresh and timeless with custom white oak millwork panels lining the walls. The building's custom millwork library on the ground floor offers direct access to a serene landscaped garden and features beautiful custom white oak shelving wrapped in leather panels. In the private cinema, a striking wood-paneled ceiling creates a moody ambiance.
